I still have not heard anything since last week after I provided significantly more information including the rules not followed by Unitil, that both of you ignored as well in trying to dismiss my complaint. I want a sufficient resolution and if you cannot provide one (promptly) I will need to speak directly with the PUC.

I still do not have a resolve to my complaints.

Please update me and provide the way to complain to the PUC directly if you are unable to resolve this issue.

If you continue to not resolve this I will be forced to take legal action.

The worker didn't call me or ring my bell. At 3:45 I went to find him, and he is just sitting in his truck. I knocked on his window. Immediately he had an attitude, and said "I am here, only because you complained." I don't even know his name. He said that multiple times when I asked him to explain what he was doing, until I asked him to just check the meter. He had little explanation of what he was doing and got annoyed when I asked for clarification. He handed me a slip and left and said in 20 years a meter has never been broken, implying I wasted his time. I did not appreciate the attitude and the subpar explanation.

1. I want something sent to me explaining the reading and how it is tested. Several other tenants came out to complain as they have a similar issue to ask him questions, and he dismissively said "it's your electric heat". It's really appalling both the attitude, the lies, and dismissiveness from your company.

2. I maintain I want the recordings as the exploitative way you handle new customers remains the core issue.

3. Confirm if any changes will occur on the bill after this check.

I will still further these complaints as you clearly have no interest in being honest and resolving this unethical way of doing business.

If you so sure you did nothing, sending me the recordings would be a non issue.

Please advise when I will have them items, either from Benjamin or Michael.

I will get back as close as I can to 3:30 tomorrow to meet them.

I want the recordings, in full, not scrubbed. There are now two incidents where Unitil choose to omit my questions, and they refused options I am entitled too, and later lied about it. Please advise when I will have them.

Further, all correspondences going forward must be in writing for accountability and so they cannot deny any conversations, as this is likely going to become a legal issue. Calls will not be accepted. If ever I need to call again by force to maintain service as has happened prior, I will be recording the call as well. Consider this my notice and your implied consent if you we ever speak.

This bill is due to 4th. A acceptable resolution must be done by this date.

FCC complaint was filed regarding your recordings.

The recordings were also requested from the Commission, WITHOUT scrubbing.

I had also requested a meter read via phone previously and your company refused.

If this bill is not fully itemized and reconciled to my satisfaction before the due date my next call is to the attorney general.

I find your practices unethical and exploitive.

Regarding the meter read, Friday at 4pm is fine.
Please confirm.

Thank you for contacting Until Customer Service. We can schedule an appointment to have your meter tested and re-read again. Please advise what day of the week works best with your schedule. We can make arrangements for you to witness the test while the tech is performing it. The metering operations hours are Monday thru Friday between 7:30am-4:00pm. Feel free to reply back to my email directly with your appointment preferences and I can make the arrangements with our metering supervisor.

As far as the FCC complaint, you have all the right to reach them as a consumer. Our IVR always states that the calls are being recorded before customers reach a live representative. If the customer still moves to connect with a representative that would be considered consent. If you would like a copy of our call recordings, we would only release them via a subpoena.

My supervisor, Amanda Noonan, and I listened to the initial call you had with Unitil. (Please note that we are not in possession of the call, we only listened to it.)

You noted early in the call that you were calling in to verify that Unitil had received your online application. The Unitil representative asked you to verify your address, whether you were connecting electric or gas service, and when you would be moving in. You provided a move-in date of 2/4/2023. As February 4 was a Saturday, the representative asked if you wanted the service to be started on Friday, February 3 or Monday February 6. After verifying that you did not need to be present, you asked for service to be started as of February 3, 2023. The Unitil representative located your online application, verifying the last 4 digits of your Social Security number (you acknowledged your reluctance to provide this information due to prior identity theft issues), your date of birth, and your contact phone number. The Unitil representative then asked how you wanted to receive your bills – paper bills mailed to you, or electronic bills emailed to you. The representative also asked if you wanted to receive text messages in the event of a power outage to which you responded affirmatively. The representative asked if you were to be the only person authorized to discuss the account with Unitil, and you stated that you were the only contact. The Unitil representative verified the meter number that was provided to you when you purchased the property, provided you with your new account number, and reiterated that while the service was already, there would be a connection and meter read fee of up to $45. In response to your comment that $45 was a significant charge, the representative explained that the fee ranged from $5 to $45 with $5 being the fee if Unitil was able to obtain a remote meter reading and $45 being the fee if a field visit was required to obtain the meter read. The representative offered you the option of setting up automatic payments for your account to which you responded you preferred to wait until you received your first bill. The representative verified that the mailing address for the account was your [REDACTED] address, and you said that was correct. The representative then asked if you had any other questions or concerns regarding your service, and you replied that you did not.

At no time during this call did you request information about rates for electric service or competitive suppliers and their rates. As we've discussed previously, there is no requirement that a regulated utility proactively provide information about third party energy supply; however, had you made such a request, you would have been provided with direction on how and where to learn more.

Commencement of service with a competitive energy supplier occurs with the meter read following the utility's receipt of an enrollment request from the supplier. As such, new customers receive energy supply service from the utility, whether a new customer of Unitil or another regulated utility in New Hampshire, and any change to a competitive energy supplier occurs with the following billing cycle.

I have called Unitil and listened to the upfront message. The message states clearly that the call will be recorded. New Hampshire is a two-party consent state for the recording of phone calls, and we are discussing with Unitil how a customer could exercise his or her right to not consent and still speak with the company.

A meter test was conducted on March 30 (?), 2023 at your home. The meter was found to be measuring usage accurately. A copy of the test results was sent to you by Unitil, and a copy is also attached here. Customer requested meter tests are notated on the Unitil work order as a complaint test. When you spoke with the meter technician prior to the meter test that was conducted, I suspect there was a miscommunication when the technician stated he was there for a complaint test.

Unitil has waived the charge for the meter test, which was the $20 you referred to as being an overcharge on your bill. If other residents in the building are concerned about high usage, as opposed to a high rate, they should reach out to Unitil directly to discuss their situation further.

If you wish to file a formal complaint with the NH Public Utilities Commission, as mentioned in your email, the procedures for making such a filing with the Commission is contained in the Commission's email, the procedures for making such a filing with the Commission is contained in the Commission's administrative rules, Puc 200 rules. I have attached a copy to this email for your convenience. Thank you,

Mike

An email demand was sent to Unutil recapping this issue, and their refusal to re read the meter.

I am quite unhappy your investigation is simply allowing them to say what they want and you take their side. That is extremely bias.

Please advise when this will be resolved if you plan to take either action.

My next call is to the attorney general of NH.

Why do you just take their word over mine? They are the ones who stand to profit, substantially.

Also, there have been multiple calls and email contacts with them. They do not answer emails.

I also requested a meter read again, and they refused. So there is another lie on their part.

And I will file an FCC complaint about these recording practices and failure to release them.

Please advise who I escalate this to to resolve the complaint.

My sincere apologies for the delay, I had asked Unutil for one more bit of info this morning and received it amongst your emails and phone call.

I'll start by offering Unutil's response to me, also from Benjamin to whom you spoke:

I listened to the call when [REDACTED] signed up for new service on 1/24/23. During the service activation call our rep was able to verify the customer identity and the service address. We also confirmed that it was electric service only for this condo. The rep disclosed the activation charge and monthly customer charge in our domestic rate. There was not inquiry or concerns expressed by the customer regarding the usage at this location or interest in other third party supply options during this call. We provided the new account number, discussed her communication preferences for billing, outage notification and she declined to set automatic payments. The service activation was scheduled effective 2/3/23 as requested. It is not part of our process to engage in third party supply discussions during a new service application, unless the customer specifically express concerns or ask for information about external suppliers. We could have easily directed her to our concerns or ask for information about external suppliers. We could have easily directed her to our webpage or the PUC website to learn more and make an informed decision based on her needs. Third Party Supply is a self-serve option.

We did not hear back from [REDACTED] until 3/16/23 when she asked to review her usage and billing charges for her initial bill. She has spoken with three different reps on the same matter since. I reviewed all calls and confirmed that we adequately explained the charges on her statement, the difference between delivery and supply charges and the usage patterns at this condo during the winter months. We explained the supply portion of our bills is a passed-through cost to all customers as utilities in New England do not generate their own electricity and place bids in the market for the lowest rate that they could find. We discussed different factors as to why the rates are so much higher compared to other years in the past. We shared information on the third party supply process and advised to visit our webpage and PUC website to learn about those options. The usage at this condo is unfortunately high in the winter and part of that is due to running electric heating. From the beginning of service on 2/3 thru the end of the cycle on 3/8, the meter recorded 1762KWH for the usage. We looked at the meter diagnostics and could not find anything wrong with the read.

Her request to adjust the billing is not warranted when there is no error or negligence in our part. If she would like the meter tested, that would be another option and we can set up an appointment for it. The meter was installed in 2021 and we haven't had any estimate reads since. If you still need copies of the call recordings, it would be a lengthy process that requires the audio files to be scrubbed first to remove all sensitive and private PII information.

I'll remind you again that the electric companies here in New Hampshire are not required by rules to provide competitive supplier information; as Benjamin indicates a customer would be referred to their website or ours for further details. If this is different than how it works in New York, I can only apologize and say our rules are almost certainly different than theirs, because it's two different states.

Regarding your issue with the call being recorded, Unitil's system clearly states before you get transferred to a live rep that your call may be recorded. If you feel that the call was illegally recorded in spite of that message that would be a matter to take up with law enforcement.

Based on the information provided to us by Unitil I have no reason to believe that any rules were broken. We have not requested the call from Unitil but can and will do so and I would be happy to review it.

Thanks,
Mike
