CORRECTION: This notice reprints the original notice for Notice Number 2024-92 published in the May 23, 2024 Register, but with a correction in Item #9 to the start time of the public hearing on June 24, 2024.

The intended action of the rulemaking is to adopt Chapter En 300 rules for electric service.

The substance of the new Chapter En 300 rules proposed by the Department of Energy (Department) is based on various provisions of the existing Chapter Puc 300 rules of the Public Utilities Commission (PUC) effectuating the division of regulatory responsibilities between the Department and the PUC. The Department drafted the Chapter En 300 rules in coordination with the PUC.

The Department proposes to adopt these new Chapter En 300 rules in accordance with 12-P:5, IV following the enactment of RSA 12-P:2, which created the Department effective July 1, 2021 (2021, 91:187, eff. July 1, 2021).

The purpose of the En 300 rules is to establish requirements for the provision of electric service in New Hampshire. The proposed rules regulate meter reading and meter accuracy and testing, service quality including voltage variation and interruption of service, notice to the Department of accidents and outages, and the requirement that utilities submit periodic reports for Department review. The Department proposes to adopt the existing sections of the Puc 300 rules where the Department's statutory authority to do so exists. In some places of the En 300 initial proposal, the Department has generally clarified language, which was retained from the existing Puc 300 rules. The Department has amended the text of the existing PUC rules pertaining to master metering as set forth in the initial proposal at En 303.01 to specify the exceptions to individual metering and the circumstances where a utility would be permitted to install or provide electric service to a master meter.

The Department has updated existing PUC forms where those forms are now considered to be Department Forms as referenced in En 308 and other sections of the Initial Proposal. The Department has updated the references to publications at Appendix B and throughout the initial proposal.

6. (b) Brief description of the groups affected:
